

Latinos and Health Coverage: New Hampshire by the Numbers

Latinos¹ are more likely to be uninsured than any other racial or ethnic group in the U.S. However, Hispanic families' access to health insurance varies by state (see Figure 1). In New Hampshire:

- ❖ Latinos have inadequate access to the current health coverage system. In 2008, only about one-half (56.2%) of all Latinos living in New Hampshire had employer-sponsored health insurance, and less than one-fifth (18.6%) were covered by Medicaid or the Children's Health Insurance Program.²
- ❖ As a result, Latino families are at risk for uninsurance. That year, about one in four (25.2%) Latinos in New Hampshire were uninsured, and one in six (15.9%) Latino children under age 18 had no form of health coverage.³
- ❖ Latinos are overrepresented among the uninsured. Although Hispanics made up 2.3% of the total state population in 2008, they represented 5.7% of New Hampshire's uninsured.⁴
